

Abstract

A system, method and device is described for monitoring and billing the distribution of controlled content such as copyright material over a network or set of networks. A tag is described which may be incorporated in content for distribution on media including magnetic and optical disks and electronic files accessible via a network. The tag is retained within the content and permits a network device to identify the content as it passes through the network.